WHAT A ROTTEN SHAME

Falling to pieces: the school that has been snubbed for too long

After three decades of promises, patch-ups and political procrastination, the people of Timboon and district have had enough. Each weekday nearly 500 of their children walk through the gates of the town's P-12 school and into classrooms, corridors and halls with leaking roofs, cracked tiles, wonky floors and rotted windows. Fix it or bulldoze it and start again, they say. But please — no more promises.
